Dear Judith:

Please tell Andra that all we are told (often because that is all the soul knows) is that the decision of planet assignments is made by Elders and Spirit Guides and presented to the soul when they know very little and are first ready to incarnate for the first time. Perhaps because of built in amnesia or ignorance ^{Also} because of lack of experience they cannot tell us of the origins of this process. There are souls who have incarnated here but do not want to come back to earth between lives. However, I could not interview them since they were not in physical form when they left the spirit world for their new assignment. Some souls never incarnate in physical form again. Conversely, when a hybrid soul from another world comes to earth we are told only that "they asked for a change"(or their planet is going into nova) and not the details of why earth was chosen for them. I have come to the conclusion that there are certain spiritual decisions made at higher levels that souls we interview simply either cannot not know or feel the information is too sacred to discuss. Anyone who has interviewed hundreds of clients knows that they hold back information from time to time on their own volition. Often, we don't know what they are holding back. Finally, it would make sense to continue to ask clients this question from time to time to see if one person just might know the answer in their own case. There is no reason why we can't make a new discovery here.

Dear Ann:

I wanted to follow up with you about the excellent question that Andra gave me yesterday through Judith. I'm sure you could sense from the paragraph I wrote in response to her question that I was frustrated I did not know more. Fairly new students without a lot of case experience often think they are responsible when no answers are forthcoming to inquiries, when actually we all have problems with some questions and this is one of those.

Also, I suspect that our clients know more than they are telling us with some issues because they don't want to violate any "spiritual trust" about sacred material. Yet, there are always a few exceptions and this is why I am writing to you.

Might I suggest something as our new Director of Research. How about you drafting an email to all our members on our Yahoo spiritual regression site about Andra's question. Just maybe we might uncover something interesting. You might say in your message: "We are aware that within the three plus hours of LBL session time there is only so much you can cover and there are some questions you may never ask unless a client returns to your office for more LBL information. There has been an interesting question posed by Andra Ilias that Michael has answered in part with what we know but we would like to learn more specific information if possible. Andra's question is: 'When a soul is created, who makes the decision about where they will incarnate?' We would like those of you who are interested to occasionally ask this question of your clients to see if we might get lucky with a few people since most clients do not know—or won't tell us—the answer to this question."

Just a suggestion, Ann. But wouldn't it be fun if someone struck gold!!!

Best wishes.....Michael

Hi, Judith!

Michael's list of topics is great. And I can't wait to read a lot of those things. But i have one more. :)
This is a thing that I was wondering while reading the books and I asked at my LBL training and I didn't get an answer. But I was advised to ask it in my LBL in front of the Council. And, guess what?!... Exactly! I didn't get the answer. So, I try again. :D

When a soul is born, who (or on what bases) decides in which world/ solar system/ planet, etc is going to incarnate?

Thanks a lot and have a great day!

Andra
